Senate Defies House Action On Tax Measure

LEVY IS REPEALED ON CAPITAL STOCK BY BIG MAJORITY

VOTE ON SURTAX EXPECTED TODAY

In Abolishing Capital
Stock Tax Senate Goes
Directly Counter to Bill
Of Lower House.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, February 2.—The senate settled down to work Tuesday and took its first important action on the tax bill, repealing the capital stock tax and voting an increase of 1 per cent in the corporation tax.

The day was devoted to business taxes, the senate going into the controversial surtax question of the measure as soon as it finished with corporation levy. Several amendments have been offered to revise surtax schedules and these probably will be voted on Wednesday.

While the senate was considering the tax bill, a final report was made by the Couzens committee, which investigated the internal revenue bureau, charging that big business corporations had been allowed more than $125,000,000 of tax reductions contrary to rulings of the solicitor of the bureau.

In abolishing the capital stock tax of $1 per $1,000, which was overwhelmingly voted, 75 to 4, the senate went directly counter to the house tax bill and overrode the objections of tax leaders of the lower body. As a result, it saved trouble for the conference on the bill later, where house representatives are expected to hold out for retention of this tax.

Senator Norris, Nebraska republican, leader of the opposition to the bill, commended the finance committee for repealing the capital stock tax, pointing out that it has been unfair in its application both to the government and to corporations, as it required two collections of taxes six months apart in January and July and made two sets of books necessary. The loss of revenue by repeal of the tax is estimated at $80,000,000.

In opposing increase of the corporation tax, democrats contended it

AGED MILLIONAIRE COMMITTS SUICIDE

Heartbroken Over Death of Son, William M. Wood
Ends Life in Lonely
Spot in Florida.

Daytona Beach, Fla., February 2.—(AP)—William Madison Wood, 68, wealthy New England wool manufacturer, died here late today by his own hand.

Leaving his automobile at a lonely spot above Flagler Beach, the aged manufacturer told his servants he wished to stroll alone through a by-path. A few moments later the chauffeur and valet hurried to the scene and found Mr. Wood lying on a bullet wound in the mouth.

WOOD BROKEN IN HEART
OVER DEATH OF SON.

Shawnee Village, Mass., February 2.—(AP)—The picture of an old man broken in heart and health by the sudden death of a son was uppermost in the minds of William M. Wood's friends and associates tonight. His suicide in Daytona Beach today recalled the death of his son, William Wood, Jr., in an automobile accident in Reading two years ago, and the part his namesake played in his later career.

It was the younger William who brought his father in closer touch with the mill workers than ever before. He advised him in matters of social welfare affecting the employees, got him to extend insurance benefits, and to organize summer camps and was instrumental in the building here of the model community for the workers in Lawrence, near here.

When Mr. Wood resigned as head of the American Woolen company, the corporation which he had founded 26 years before, had become the largest textile manufacturing organization in the world, with capital of $30,000,000, assets of $150,000,000 and 60 mills employing 40,000 workers.

Democrats Assail Denial By Coolidge Of Politics Charge

STATE-WIDE BOND ISSUE INDORSED AT ATHENS MEET

Citizens of Cities From Hartwell to Macon Indorse Extra Session
Program for Bonds.

Athens, Ga., February 2.—(Special.)—Indorsement of Governor Clifford Walker's bond issue program for highway and educational improvement and his plan to provide for payment of Confederate veterans' pensions was unanimously voted here today at a meeting of citizens representing cities from Hartwell to Macon. The resolution indorsing the governor's program was offered by former State Senator James H. Skelton, Sr., of Hartwell.

Senator Skelton declared that the time has come when "we must knock the politics out of the state highway department."

The meeting here today was attended by citizens representing Hartwell, Athens, Madison, Macon, Danielsville, Royston, Watkinsville, Monticello, all situated on the Hartwell-Athens-Macon highway. It was held for the purpose of taking action on the state-wide bond issues for highway purposes, but Senator Skelton's resolution included indorsement of all three of the governor's recommendations.

The delegates adopted a motion providing for permanent organization of an association to promote the building of a permanent highway from Hartwell to Macon. C. C. Thomas, secretary of the Athens chamber of commerce and president of the state highway association, was elected permanent chairman.

Road Body Criticized.

Criticism of the policy now prevailing in highway construction in Georgia was voiced by every speaker at the meeting today. Lack of funds and mismanagement were the causes contributing to the failure of the state to build a highway system that it needs, the speakers said. "Politics" was also accused of playing an active part in the present opposition to authorization of a state bond issue for highway purposes in the forthcoming extra session of the legislature.

It was pointed out by the speakers from the various counties along the route that their people had voted bonds for highway construction purposes on the basis of the state highway commission that their funds would be "matched." In every instance of this kind cited, the speakers declared that they had had to be content with the "promises" of the highway commission. They haven't the roads they hoped to get yet.

Dr. W. L. Hailley, mayor of Hartwell, was the first to speak.

Howard Urges Telling Truth About Heroes

British Ambassador Supports Stand Taken by Rupert Hughes

New York, February 2.—Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, has joined the ranks of those who advocate teaching children the truth about national heroes, even if it disrupts legends of many years' standing.

Howard, in a speech before the New England society here Tuesday night, approved the methods of modern historians in teaching the true facts, even though it "diminishes the traditional virtues of national heroes and make former antagonists appear less monstrous than in 'Old Wives Tales.'"

He did not mention names or the recent statements of Rupert Hughes, the novelist, who pictured George Washington as a drinker, card player, and all-night dancer, and called down the wrath of certain historical organizations upon his head.

The British ambassador answered those who object to teaching the truth "because they say it undermines the sturdy nationalism of the rising generation."

"To such we may reply," he said, "that a sturdy nationalism which is founded largely on unscientific historical teaching is founded on the sand and that children so taught are apt to fly to the other extreme when they grow up and realize that their early teaching of history was not on really scientific lines."

Executive Has Been Trying To Win Favor of People in All His Speech-

NEWSPAPER REVOLT FACES PRESIDENT

Refuses Permission To Be Quoted—White House
Blames "Party Talk" for Attacks.

Washington, February 2.—(AP)—A white house report to the charge that President Coolidge has been playing politics was followed today by a renewal of the charge from the democratic side of the senate.

What was said at the white house was imparted to newspapermen in the usual informal manner, and permission to print it as a direct statement by the president was withheld. The substance of it was that Mr. Coolidge hoped the public would not take recent criticisms of him in congress and elsewhere too seriously, but would bear in mind that this is a campaign year, and that public discussions at this season are likely to have a political flavor.

Within two hours after the correspondence left the executive office, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi said on the senate floor that the president had called in newspapermen and warned them that speeches in congress are political. The senator added that such a statement was "unworthy of the president of the United States."

Politics Charged.

"The president has been going over the country making speeches to commercial organizations and to chambers of commerce," Senator Harrison said, "exploiting his views, seeking to bring the people to his idea of government and to win approval of his administrative policy. He has not made a single speech, from that uttered before the chamber of commerce of New York to that fly-by-night journey to Chicago when he addressed the farmers of the great northwest offering to them a panacea which was disapproved by that great section of the country, but that he was trying to win favor with the people, playing politics in his speeches."

"If there has been in the white house a policy of playing politics, it is a policy of playing politics," he declared.

DEBT SETTLEMENT URGED BY BRIAND

Greater Stability Must Be Given French Government in Interest of Franc, Says Premier.

Paris, February 2.—(AP)—The inter-allied debts must be settled and greater stability must be given the French government before the franc can be stabilized, Premier Briand told the chamber this afternoon. He was arguing against the radical Deputy Dubois' demand that the "financial debate be postponed until the government had brought in a complete scheme for stabilization of French money."

The instabilities of the French ministries, the premier went on to say, were regarded abroad with apprehension. The French people also would have more confidence and ease the financial situation if they were assured that the government could last long enough to deal with the grave problems France had to settle.

M. Briand, in his most velvety style, replied to the attacks on the government's bills in a way that drew cheers from all parts of the house except the communists and socialists' benches. He admitted that there were good things in the finance committee's project, but regarded it as having too remote an effect.

The premier's speech is regarded as greatly improving the chances of a compromise between the finance committee and the government on a combined financial restoration plan.

MUSCLE SHOALS BILL CONFRONTS SENATORS TODAY

Agricultural Body To Consider Smith Measure
Providing for Distribution of Power.

GEORGIA SENATOR URGES AMENDMENT

Senator George Asks
That Power Not Used To Manufacture Fertilizer Be Distributed.

Washington, February 2.—(AP)—The first skirmish over Muscle Shoals at this session of the senate will be fought out tomorrow by the agricultural committee behind closed doors.

The committee must decide on one of three courses: Report the house resolution permitting the leasing of Muscle Shoals by a joint congressional committee, send out a bill of its own dealing specifically with disposition of the property or extend the hearings, thus postponing a final decision.

Three Plans Supported.

Either procedure will find some support from members of the committee. Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, is championing the fight for an immediate report on the house resolution while Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, is urging adoption of his own measure which would require the distribution of power and experimental use into nitrogen manufacture processes. Senator Randall, democrat, Louisiana contends more time is needed for consideration of the problem and favors an extension of the hearings.

The hearings were ended today and under an agreement previously reached the committee must vote on the house resolution by 11:30 tomorrow morning.

Senator Smith informed the committee he would move tomorrow to reconsider the agreement, while Senator Heflin declared he would make a point of order against it and insist on the vote.

Coolidge Confers.

During today's hearing, President Coolidge conferred with Russell Bower, a member of the Muscle Shoals commission and Chester Gray, of the American farm bureau federation. They refused to comment on the purpose of their call at the white house beyond saying that they talked over Muscle Shoals with the president.

Bower signed the majority report of the commission recommending the leasing of Muscle Shoals at a suitable private bid could be obtained and government operation as an alternative. He is also identified with the federation and frequently has advocated fertilizer production at Muscle Shoals.

Numerous witnesses testified before the senate committee today, some urging the use of Muscle Shoals for fertilizer manufacture and others insisting on the distribution of power.

Senator George, democrat, Georgia, declared the house resolution should be amended to provide that power be used for fertilizer manufacture. He also identified with the federation and frequently has advocated fertilizer production at Muscle Shoals.

Father Races On Special To Bedside of Injured Son

FINDS BABY BOY HERE ONLY SLIGHTLY HURT

Alarmed by exaggerated reports of injuries sustained in Atlanta by 2-year-old son, Billy, Colonel D. C. Woodward, prominent citizen of Hendersonville, N. C., Tuesday night made a record-breaking trip to Atlanta on a specially-chartered Southern railroad train, arriving at the Brookwood station at 12:05 o'clock.

For three hours and five minutes, the anxious father had sped through the night at a rate of 50 miles an hour, while the Southern railroad cleared its entire southbound trackage to allow the speeding special right of way as its glaring headlights stabbed the inky darkness and its whistle kept up a constant screech of warning.

Meanwhile, young Billy was at the home of a private nurse here suffering from slight cuts about the face sustained when he fell from the dinner table on the broken sippers of a goblet which he had dropped.

The child was treated at Davis Fischer sanitarium, where physicians said his wounds were superficial. He was immediately dismissed and taken to the home of a private nurse in whose care he had been placed while his mother was ill at a local hospital. He spent only a few minutes at the hospital while several stitches were being taken to close the cuts on his face.

Seated at the dinner table Tuesday night, he is reported to have dropped the goblet and in bending down to pick it up, fell face-downward on the broken glass.

First reports of the accident received by the father in Hendersonville caused him to dash across country to Greenville, where at 9 o'clock

NEGRO BARBER BAN WILL BE ENJOINED BY CITY CHAMBER

Hoffman Appeals to Mayor Sims To Veto Measure Passed by Council
"To Satisfy Prejudices."

METHODIST LAYMEN OPPOSE MEASURE

Effort To Prevent Negro
Barbers From Serving
White Patrons Brings
Storm of Protests.

Washington, February 2.—(AP)—If the measure becomes law the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will go into the courts and enjoin enforcement of city council's ordinance adopted Monday prohibiting negro barbers from serving white customers.

This was announced Tuesday by B. S. Barker, executive vice president, following a meeting of the chamber's executive committee.

"We feel that we will be backed in this decision by the entire board of directors," Mr. Barker said. He added that telephones of the chamber had been ringing all day, responsible business men voicing heated protest against such a measure aimed at stirring up race trouble, and asking for relief from its provisions.

W. D. Hoffman, president of the chamber, Tuesday addressed a letter to Mayor Sims protesting against the ordinance.

J. P. McGrath, secretary of the Georgia Manufacturers' association, also entered protest against the measure following a meeting of the executive committee of his organization at which he was delegated to call on Mayor Walter Sims and request him to veto the paper.

Still another protest was entered by the laymen's regional conference of the Methodist church, now in session in Atlanta. This was in the form of resolutions adopted by the conference.

Hoffman His Ban.

President Hoffman, of the chamber of commerce, vigorously scored council's action in his letter to the mayor. He declared the measure is absolutely in defiance of the constitutional rights of the citizens of the city and it brings no benefit to anybody, "excepting to satisfy the prejudices of some people against the negro."

"It might be construed," Mr. Hoffman said, "to prevent us from employing negroes in our homes. It also does away, if carried into effect, with negro maid in manicure establishments, and I think the time is now coming when the common sense of the city council should be appealed to to prevent measures of this kind passing."

Mr. Hoffman appealed to the mayor to veto the measure, and asserted that he felt sure the mayor would have the backing of everybody in the chamber of commerce, the majority of business men and a large number of people whose property is now rented to establishments which will be closed under this ordinance.

Resolutions adopted by the laymen's regional conference of the Methodist church follow:

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the laymen's regional conference of the Methodist church, south, now in session in Atlanta, and

Whereas, the very purpose and spirit is one of brotherhood of all men and nations,

"Be it resolved by the conference that we deplore the proposed action of the city council of Atlanta, Georgia, to prohibit negro barbers from serving white customers."

Fight Upon Grady Graduate School Regime Launched

acterized as "Farce" in Petition Presented to Council Hospital Body.

SPEAKERS CHARGE "AUTOCRATIC" RULE

School Heads Will Blame
"Politics Upon Part of Certain Atlanta Doctors" in Formal Answer.

Revolt said to have been smoldering for many months flared into open warfare Tuesday night when the hospital and charities committee of city council met at Grady hospital to take action on a petition seeking to divorce the white department of Grady from the Atlanta Graduate School of Physicians and Surgeons, which is declared to be under the "dictatorship" of Dr. Frank Eskridge, Dr. Garnett W. Quillian, Dr. T. C. Davidson and Dr. H. R. Donaldson.

The meeting was adjourned to meet again Friday night, following prolonged discussion.

The meeting was behind closed doors and was called to discuss the petition signed by several members of the hospital staff asking hospital committee of council to terminate an agreement with the Atlanta Graduate school by which the school is charged with forming an autocratic rule, electing members of the staff, shifting and releasing them at will.

It is understood that this condition has caused much dissension and that strong opposition has developed against the alleged dictatorship. While members of the committee and Mayor Walter A. Sims declined to make public details of the meeting, it was learned that friends of the four physicians involved protested vigorously against any action on the petition.

Dr. Quillian declared that although the petition had been in circulation for the past several days he had been unable to learn of its contents and had not seen a copy until it was "sneaked" at the meeting.

Members of the hospital committee characterized the meeting as a "flurry" and would not discuss the petition declared that the grad-

POISON IS FATAL TO ATLANTA MAN

C. J. Nash Dies After Swallowing Acid in East Point; No Reasons
Known for Act.

East Point, Ga., February 2.—(Special.)—Drinking the contents of a small bottle of carbolic acid, which is said to have been bought under the pretense that he wanted it to use in killing bedbugs, C. J. Nash, 33, of Ormond street, a produce dealer, died here tonight in a drug store a few minutes after he had swallowed the poison. Members of his family were unable to give any reason for Nash's suicide.

Nash, with his brother, C. E. Nash, drove into East Point late this afternoon and entered the East Point pharmacy and tried to buy the acid. Dr. Sumner, who waited upon him, states he tried to dissuade the man from buying carbolic acid, and tried to sell him an insect powder instead, but Nash, according to Dr. Sumner, said he had tried "all the remedies suggested" and that they were not effective and insisted upon the acid.

After purchasing the small bottle Nash left the store and while standing in the entrance to a stairway to a nearby building, drained the bottle. He was found almost immediately by his brother and was carried into the drug store.

An ambulance from the Blanchard Bros. was called and S. A. Blanchard answered the call. Although a quick run was made to the drug store, Mr. Nash died on his way to the hospital.

Mr. Nash is married and has two children.

The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Blanchard Bros. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Tuesday night.

BRITONS CONDEMN SMUGGLING RUM INTO U. S. PORTS

Sir Austen Chamberlain
Sends Letter Expressing
His Sympathy With Movement in London.

SCHOOL HEADS WILL BLAME "POLITICS UPON PART OF CERTAIN ATLANTA DOCTORS"

London, February 2.—(AP)—The smuggling of liquor into the United States by British subjects was condemned severely today in a largely attended meeting in the church house under the shadow of Westminster Abbey.

The meeting was held to frame a response to the appeal recently sent abroad by the American citizens' committee of one thousand. An official touch was given the occasion by a letter from Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, indicating entire sympathy with the purpose of the gathering.

The bishop of London, who presided, said the meeting was not called to express any views about prohibition, but he added he thought the British people had been told a great many manufactured lies from across the ocean about prohibition. There is not the slightest doubt, he said, that the industrial output of America has increased and public health improved.

Effect on Nation.

"You can not think anything of those silly little fools who swagger at dances with brandy flasks. That's mere bravado," he said. "You have to look at the great broad effect upon the whole nation."

It is a gross impertinence, the bishop continued, to try to undo anything that a great sister nation has chosen to decide for its own good. Cries of "shame" were raised when the bishop turned his attention to the statistics showing that in the last six months of 1925 twenty out of twenty-four liquor ships seized by the American authorities were British.

"This traffic is most dishonoring to Britain," the bishop asserted. "We have in our minds the wonderful rescue made by the President Roosevelt. Let us make some adequate return."

Noted Divorce Suit Reopened In New Court

Congressman Frank D. Scott
Is Sued by Wife in Detroit Court.

Detroit, February 2.—(AP)—A sequel to the Scott divorce trial which was heard in the Alpena, Mich., circuit court last summer and which resulted in Judge Frank D. Emerick's refusing a decree to either petitioner, was written in the Wayne county circuit court records late today when Mrs. Edna James Scott filed suit to divorce Congressman Frank D. Scott, of Alpena. Desertion is charged.

Congressman Scott, in his first suit, charged his wife was "indiscreet" in her conduct, and evidence was introduced tending to show that she entertained in her Washington apartment a hotel clerk and an air service officer. All charges were denied by Mrs. Scott, who, in turn, introduced testimony which sought to show her husband drank and lost considerable sums at card games.

Following the draw verdict in the Alpena court, both Mr. and Mrs. Scott declared they would appeal to the state supreme court. Mrs. Scott, however, had established her residence in Detroit and decided upon a new suit in a new jurisdiction rather than carrying the case to the higher court. Under the Alpena court decision Mrs. Scott has received $150 a month for living expenses.

CAMPBELL JURY INDICTS 4 MEN IN MURDER CASE

Mystery Death in 1922
of Atlanta-to-Ben Hill
Taxi Driver Revived by Indictments.

MEN TO BE PLACED ON TRIAL MONDAY

Dispute With Alleged "Liquor Ring" Given as
Cause of Death of Man
Buried in Sawdust.

Fairburn, Ga., February 2.—(Special.)—Ora Whittle, recently convicted and given a life sentence on the charge of being the man who struck the blow that killed James P. Langston, rural mail carrier in 1922, in Fayette county, being one of eight given life sentences in the case, was today indicted by the Campbell county grand jury and charged with killing Homer McElreath, whose body was unearthed from a pile of sawdust near Ben Hill on August 1, 1922.

Four Indicted.

Three other men were also indicted, two of whom are now under arrest for the McElreath murder. They are George Waller, brother of John and Charlie Waller, given life terms in the Langston case; Charlie Huggins, a farmer living in the Ben Hill community, and a fourth man, whose identity has not been disclosed, as his arrest is sought.

McElreath, who was employed as a convict guard in Fulton county, and who operated a jitney Saturdays and Sundays from Atlanta to Ben Hill, was missing from his home on Saturday, July 20, 1922, and after a search lasting until Monday, his body was found covered in a pile of sawdust at a mill near Ben Hill. Several suspects were arrested in the case, but all were freed, and the murder remained a mystery until developments this week.

Credit for unearthing, both the Langston case and McElreath case, is freely given to Sheriff T. W. Camp, who succeeded Sheriff Jenkins, killed in an automobile accident on the Fairburn-Newnan highway last fall. After taking office Sheriff Camp set to work on the two mystery cases of the community.

He turned his attention to the Langston case and as a result of his investigations, four men have been convicted and given life sentences for the murder of Langston. That case closed only recently and then the sheriff turned his attention to the McElreath murder, evidence in the Langston case indicating that they were connected.

Getting into the inner workings of an alleged "liquor ring" that operated in the Atlanta area, Sheriff Camp, in the last six months of 1925, twenty out of twenty-four liquor ships seized by the American authorities were British.

"This traffic is most dishonoring to Britain," the bishop asserted. "We have in our minds the wonderful rescue made by the President Roosevelt. Let us make some adequate return."

COST OF OPERATING CITY INCREASES

Washington, February 2.—(Special.)—The cost of running the city government of Atlanta increased over $1,000,000 in 1924 over 1923, according to figures gathered by the department of commerce and made public Tuesday.

Payments for maintenance and operation of the general departments of the city for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1924, amounted to $6,075,511. In 1923 the comparative amount for maintenance and operation of general departments was $5,049,455 and for 1917, $2,858,139. Payments for the operation of public service enterprises (waterworks, scales, cemeteries and halls) amounted to $401,582; interest on debt, $630,

457; and outlays for permanent improvements, including those for public enterprises, $3,901,788. The total payments, therefore, for expenses of general departments and public service enterprises, interest and outlays, were $11,026,315. The total include all payments for the year, whether made from current revenues or from the proceeds of bond issues. The total revenue receipts of Atlanta for 1924 were $9,041,915. This was $2,444,385 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, but $1,574,403 less than the total payments including those for permanent improvements. These payments in excess of revenue receipts were met from the proceeds of debt obligations. Property taxes represented 51.5 per cent of the total revenue for 1924, 55.6 per cent for 1923 and 62.2 per cent for 1917. The increase in amount of property taxes collected was 60.5 per cent from 1917 to 1923 and 10.4 per cent from 1923 to 1924. Earnings of public service enterprises operated by the city represented 18 per cent of the total revenue for 1924, 16 per cent for 1923 and 13.1 per cent for 1917. The net indebtedness (funded debt less sinking fund assets) of Atlanta on December 31, 1924, was $9,739,050. In 1923 the amount of net debt was $9,830,050 and in 1917 $4,252,226. For 1924 the assessed valuation of property in Atlanta subject to ad valorem taxes for city corporation was $338,718,188. The levy for all purposes for 1924 was $8,962,760, of which $5,080,773 or 56.5 per cent was levied for the city corporation; $1,222,496, or 13.6 per cent, for state; and $2,680,491, or 29.9 per cent, for the county.

Indeed, none has been so courageous before as to make such a pronouncement.

"Ah, Mr. President, using the great power of his great office, wielding the exceptional influence he now commands, the president tries to focus the attention of the country and have the people believe there is a great conspiracy on foot in this country, and through public speeches; that they are to have nothing but political speeches and not a discussion of the real facts.

"The minority party both in the house and the senate has played less politics since December than at any other time in the history of the American congress.

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1925.

NEWSPAPER REVOLT FACING PRESIDENT.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. Washington, February 2.—The 1923 political season has opened with President Coolidge taking a vigorous offensive somewhat in contrast to his usual tactics of silence.

The white house spokesman, a sandy-haired little man from Vermont who has been closely associated with President Coolidge for years, gave warning to the country through the newspaper men at the Tuesday press conference that the political season has arrived and that speeches made in congress and elsewhere from now on should be discussed.

Democratic senators were incensed and accused the president of using his great power to mislead the country and that the president was guilty of any who criticize the administration.

An incipient newspaper revolt occurred in the white house over the incident. The president of the White House Correspondents' association requested Everett Sanders, secretary to the president, to obtain suspension of the white house rule that the press may not be quoted at the press conferences. The correspondents said it was unfair to expect them to carry a political speech such as the president made in the white house and not be permitted to attribute it to him. This request was carried to the president, who refused to suspend the rule for the day. Then the correspondents asked that inasmuch as they had to carry the substance of the president's remarks on their own authority, that they be given a copy of the stenographic notes for the sake of accuracy. This also was refused.

Counter Action. Recent attacks of democrats who are formulating their campaign strategy prompted the president to forestall them by attempting to attach political color to all of their future activities.

The white house spokesman discarded the sheaf of written questions handed in by the correspondents and spoke from notes which the president had jotted down for him on a small slip of paper. The spokesman, obviously referring to criticisms provoked by the aluminum case, prohibition enforcement and the difficulties in the federal trade and tariff commissions, said in substance that the administrative branches of the government are functioning well and that business conditions are good. All questions of law violation are being and will be examined and attended to. The president hoped that the country would remember that this is the season of the political calendar when selfish political motives often underlie criticism of the party in power and that the country will not take too seriously the speeches being made in congress and in the country.

The president also complained of the propaganda of the army and navy. He said that always at this time of year when the appropriation bills are before congress an attempt is made to give the impression that the defenses are in a bad state. He regards the army and navy as very adequate. Four billion dollars has been spent on them in the last six years. He hopes the country will not take the propaganda going out of Washington from the army and navy publicity bureaus too seriously.

Also the president discredited the assumption that entrance into the world court means that later the United States will go into the League of Nations. He said this does not follow at all, rather the contrary.

of the city of Atlanta as being unjust to the negroes, and unworthy of white citizens to thus discriminate against the colored people, to whom we ought to be just and helpful. The limit of our ability, in guaranteeing them life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Be it further resolved, that we request the mayor of Atlanta to veto this act.

The resolution was introduced by Dr. W. T. Hinnicutt, presiding elder of the South Atlanta district. Another protest against the ordinance came from the Evangelical Ministers' association, which has adopted unanimously the following resolution: "Resolved, That the Evangelical Ministers' association looks with disfavor upon any ordinance that will prohibit colored barbers from serving their white patrons as has always been their custom."

STATE-WIDE BOND ISSUE INDORSED

well, declaring that the members of the highway commission are his personal friends, also asserted that he had been given enough promises to fill the dining room of the hotel where they were meeting when he went to the state board to ask for aid for Hart county roads. "We have the money, voted by our people but we cannot get state and federal aid," he said.

Sam Bowers, of Royston, declared that he has never been a partisan of Governor Walker, but believes his program for Georgia's progress should be supported. He said that the mud hole on this side of Royston on the Bankhead highway is the best argument for a state bond issue he knows of outside of James A. Holcomb's "broadside" in The Atlanta Constitution yesterday. "We have been in a rut in our highway development in Georgia, and it has turned into a mud hole," said Mr. Bowers.

Representative Adams, of Franklin county; B. T. Moseley, of Madison; M. J. Abney, of Athens; and C. Ashford, of Georgia, and speakers from Bibb, Putnam and Morgan counties enthusiastically indorsed a state-wide bond issue, declaring that it should be voted by the legislature.

Senator Skelton, pointing out that he was a classmate in college of Chairman John N. Holder, a personal friend also of Commissioners Bennett and Phillips, declared he believes they are all honest at heart. He said, however, that the highway commission is not giving the state the roads it should have. He stated that it has been said that it was due to lack of funds and also mismanagement. He believes that it is both.

"We have passed the oratory stage in Georgia," said Frank T. Reynolds, of the Danaher hotel system and widely-known good roads advocate, in urging the bond issue.

"Georgia now owes about 70 counties," he said, "approximately $7,000,000, and Clarke county would be the beneficiary to about $200,000. The pay-as-you-pave plan will not get us out of the mud for 40 years," he said in a lengthy address.

Secretary Thomas read a telegram from R. W. Parker, president of the Madison Kiwanis club, assuring the support of that organization. A. P. Fant, secretary of the Anderson, S. C. Chamber of Commerce, made a short talk reiterating the importance of the Anderson-Hartwell-Athens-Macon highway, and saying that under the pay-as-you-pave plan of South Carolina there is no hope of their end of the road being paved in the near future, unless Georgia paved her end and pressure was therefore brought to complete the road to his city.

Every county from a bi-weekly bulletin published at Greensboro, N. C., were read showing that the chairman of the Georgia highway commission had wired that the road to Athens-Macon was in bad condition and outlined a route for tourists to follow that led down the eastern and southern parts of the state through Waycross, and the home of one of the commissioners.

A letter was read from Robert E. Ligon, Anderson, S. C., and a member of the South Carolina commission stating that the purchase of the Alford bridges had been held up on account of the title.

Bronkus Zellars, representative in the legislature from Hart county, stated that Hart county had voted bonds sufficient, it thought, to pave the Bankhead highway through the county but when it applied for state funds to aid in the purchase of the Alford bridges was notified by the state highway commission that only enough aid could be given this year to pave four miles of roadway, enough in 1927 to pave four miles and enough in 1928 to pave four miles. "In three years we would only be able to pave to Royston and we have our part of the money," stated Mr. Zellars. "Yet we are to tell the state highway department that we will have enough money to carry on the roadwork of the state under the 'pay-as-you-pave system.'"

MAON CHAMBER FAVORS BOND ISSUE.

Macon, Ga., February 2.—(AP)—One of the first echoes from the action of the state highway board in opposing a bond issue for highway improvements throughout the state and favoring a "cash plan" for state roads was heard from the local chamber of commerce, which had some on record as being opposed to a "cash road plan."

"If the cash plan is tried, it will mean that sections here and there will be left out of the program on account of delay," the chamber stated through Lincoln McConnell, manager.

"Where the are eight or ten organizations working on a road program each will take their own time and will do the work in their own way. On the other hand, by the bond issue one organization will have charge of the entire work, and will do it continuously and get it completed."

JEFFERSON AUDIENCE GREETS GOVERNOR.

Jefferson, Ga., February 2.—(Special.)—Addressing a crowd that practically filled the courthouse here during the noon recess of court, Governor Clifford Walker today outlined to Jackson county citizens the issues to be included in the extra session call of the Georgia legislature. He declared himself in favor of a state-wide issue of bonds for roads saying that the future of the state depends upon the education of its citizens and that a system of paved roads would greatly aid the school system.

In his plea for equal education facilities for all children of the state, he stated that "intelligibles" should be taxed. He pleaded for a better educational system that would furnish well-trained teachers, a system of consolidated schools and better advantages for the colleges and higher schools. His speech was well received.

He was introduced by State Senator Herman P. DeLaperriere, of Houston.

ate school is not a school and characterized it as "a farce." They charged that the "autocratic tendencies" of those in charge is hampering its usefulness to such a degree that any good it might do is offset by the dissatisfaction it is causing.

Councilman Horace Russell sought to adjourn the meeting until next Tuesday but persistent demands of friends of the petition that "further harm be averted and that the despotism of the quartet be ended at once" caused the committee to vote to meet again Friday.

School For Internes. The Atlanta Graduate School of Physicians and Surgeons was incorporated by Dr. Eskridge, Dr. Quillian, Dr. Davidson and Dr. Donaldson about three years ago, according to information obtained Tuesday night, by arrangements of these doctors with the city of Atlanta, post-graduate courses were to be given internes in white wards at Grady hospital. The negro division personnel is furnished by Emory university and so far as could be learned Tuesday night it is not concerned in the controversy.

Council members of the committee are Frank H. Reynolds, chairman; J. L. McLendon, C. L. Ashley, Horace Russell and A. J. Orme.

Dr. Quillian, Dr. Eskridge and others named in the petition declined to discuss the matter following the meeting, declaring that presentation of the petition was "a surprise they could not answer without thought." It was on motion of their friends that the decision of the councilman committee was deferred in order that the accused might file a formal answer.

While they refused to make any statement, it was understood that their answer will charge that "certain doctors who signed the petition did it for political reasons because they object to centralization of authority necessary to the functioning of an efficient hospital."

Will Cite Improvements. They will cite improvements in the physical equipment of the institution, which they claim have been made in the interest of greater efficiency, and changes in the location of several departments.

Since organization of the graduate school, it is pointed out by friends of the physicians under fire, Grady hospital has been rated as an A-1 hospital by the American College of Surgeons.

Since the school was opened for mally the latter part of 1923, 22 students have matriculated. This is in line with small classes and better teaching of graduate schools, it is further claimed by friends of the present administration.

A Health Secret Ages Old

which is bringing thousands new vigor and vitality

Centuries before any scientist could explain why, certain springs were known to have unusual health value. People by the thousands congregated at those centers to benefit by these secret properties.

Now we know that those springs are healthful because they are radio-active. Hot Springs, Arkansas, is a famous example.

And the same principles have been developed farther. For the Radium Ore Revigator is, in truth, a health spring in the home. It provides the same radio-active water that you find in world-famous health centers.

Thousands of people now attest the benefits of radio-active water. It means better health, higher efficiency and greater enjoyment of life.

a new "six"

at a new low price

TO its famous line of cars—Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick and Cadillac—General Motors has added a new car at a new price.

It is the Pontiac "Six."

The Pontiac is a quality car at a popular price. It is for the market between Chevrolet and Oldsmobile and further rounds out General Motors' program of "A Car for Every Purse and Purpose."

Every resource of General Motors' purchasing power, manufacturing economies, engineering and research has been put into the Pontiac. It comes as a tried and proved car; for many months it has stood the most exhaustive tests at General Motors' great Proving Ground in Michigan.

The Pontiac "Six" is produced and marketed by the Oakland division of General Motors as a companion to the Oakland Six. It is another example of the quality and value made possible by a group of strong companies working together.

RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF MILK LAWS URGED

Despite charges Monday afternoon by Councilman W. E. Saunders, chairman of the sanitary committee of city council, that "a milk trust exists in Atlanta because of regulations enacted by council governing marketing of the product," sanitary committee guns were trained on rigid enforcement of the ordinances.

Councilman Guy Dobbs declared that certain restaurants are reported to have grown lax in sanitation in preparation of foods and that he will at once launch an investigation to see if such reports are true.

Mr. Saunders made his charges in the committee room after about 50 dairymen appeared before the body claiming that the present law prohibits the sale of certain grades of milk to certain dealers, while pasteurizing plants are permitted to buy the milk and after "putting it through the process, market it."

No action was taken on Mr. Saunders' charges but the committee named Councilman Dobbs head of a special committee to enforce the laws and at the same time to grant dairymen who are attempting to comply with regulations ample time to come within the law.

Other members of the committee who will serve with Mr. Dobbs are Councilmen Cecil Allen and Garland Cooper. K. Caldwell, barn and milk inspector, was transferred to the position of food inspector by vote of the committee, and T. P. Vaughan was made inspector of markets. Election to fill the place made vacant by the elevation of Mr. Caldwell will take place next Tuesday.

The committee recommended that the salary of L. A. Roach, of the sanitary department, be increased $1 per day. This action will be forwarded to the finance committee. The committee voted to ask for bids for 14 two-ton trucks for the sanitary department.

Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer, planned for a more rigid enforcement of milk laws. About 50 dairymen, headed by Frank Carroll, asked that they be given time to construct barns and provide themselves with equipment to enable them to comply with the law.

FARM WORKERS END CONFERENCE TODAY

After submitting reports covering the activities of the organization for the two days of its session at the Ansley hotel the Southern Agricultural Extension Workers' conference will come to an end at noon today. It was announced Tuesday night by O. B. Martin, chairman of the conference, who is at the head of the field work in the south of the United States department of agriculture.

Prominent men and women engaged in the extension work in fifteen southern states are in attendance at the session, as well as noted agricultural workers from various government departments and other agencies. Edgar Bell and A. K. Short, of Chicago, who are connected with the Sears-Roebuck Foundation to aid farmers, are guests of the conference. No steps are to be taken at this time to carry this work into the south, according to Mr. Bell.

The guests of the conference Tuesday enjoyed a trip to Stone Mountain and other points of interest near Atlanta.

At the Tuesday session T. B. Symons, director of extension work in Maryland, made a plea for greater financial recognition of this class of work in the south. He said many capable agents of the extension department are leaving the service because they are offered more attractive salaries by corporations and business firms. Miss Flaxia Gleason, state home demonstration agent of Florida; J. N. Duncan, director of the extension work in Alabama; T. M. Campbell and J. B. Pierce, two negro agents in Alabama, made reports of their activities.

Three Central Pieces Of Ship Service May Go To Estate of Jeweler

Efforts will be made to have the three large central pieces of the silver service presented by this state to the old battleship "Georgia," returned to the state of the jeweler who furnished the set and who has never been paid for their manufacture.

The complete silver set, engraved as a gift from Georgia to her namesake battleship, was purchased in part by the late Governor Joseph Terrell, on behalf of the state, and in part by the cities of Atlanta, Savannah, Macon and other larger cities of the state. Governor Terrell ordered the three central pieces, a punch bowl, ladle and tray, on behalf of the state, while the cities paid for the smaller pieces on a ratio of population and wealth.

The legislature, however, refused to authorize payment of the $2,000 which was the estate's part of the price, on the ground that it never authorized the purchase. The matter was before the legislature for several years, the late Charles Crankshaw, jeweler, who made the sale of the service, making every effort to secure his pay.

CITIZENS OF COUNTY SEEK NEW NUMBERING

Members of the Fulton county commission will be urged to extend the new system of house numbering to be established in Atlanta to include the section of the city which lies out of the present city boundaries, by a delegation of Fulton county citizens at a meeting of the commission, to be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the courthouse.

Many of the main streets of Atlanta extend beyond the city limits into the county territory and are lined with houses. Since the new system of numbering is to be established in the city limits considerable confusion will be caused unless it is extended to include the county territory.

All citizens interested in the movement have been urged to appear before the county commission and ask that the county be included in the new plan.

Gas Pressure Makes Women Nervous

Many women who have stomach trouble are bothered just as Mrs. A. Smith was. She writes that gas from undigested food caused heart palpitation and constriction and made her very nervous. After taking the mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc. (known as Adierika) she is well.

Many people keep the OUTSIDE body clean but let their INSIDE body stay full of gas and poisons. Give the inside a REAL cleansing with the mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc. as sold under the name of Adierika. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, eliminates metabolic poisons and removes old matter which you never thought was in your system, and which caused sour stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, etc.

Whenever you eat too much heavy food, let Adierika REMOVE the undigested surplus and leave you feeling like a new person. Adierika GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling. Even if your bowels move every day, Adierika brings out much additional matter which might cause trouble. Don't waste time with pills or tablets but let Adierika give your stomach and bowels QUICK relief.

What Doctors Say.
Dr. G. Eggers reports Adierika is the best medicine he has used in 37 years.

Dr. W. H. Barnhart writes he could not give along in his practice without Adierika. Dr. J. J. Weaver, a doctor for 50 years, says he knows no medicine better than Adierika.

Dr. L. Langlois prescribes Adierika regularly with kidney effect.

J. E. Puckett writes: "After using Adierika I feel better than for 20 years. AWFUL impurities were eliminated from my system."

Adierika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because it gives quick and quick action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere.—(ads.)

Want Sparkling Teeth, Gums Like Coral?

Here's simple new way to gain them

Please accept full 10-day tube free. Note the great difference in the color of your teeth when dingy film is removed as dentists widely urge. Note the gum firmness

THERE is now a way to restore "off-color" teeth to clear and sparkling whiteness. A way that firms tender gums and brings them healthy coral tint. Very often one's whole appearance is thus changed amazingly.

Modern dental science has found teeth rarely are naturally clouded or off color. But simply clouded by a dingy film coat that ordinary cleaning methods do not successfully remove.

Send coupon and full 10-day tube of this new method will be sent you. World dental authorities now are widely urging it. It may quickly work a transformation in your smile.

What film is—Dulls teeth, invites gum disorders

Dental science now traces scores of tooth and gum troubles to a film that forms on teeth.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc.

And that is why your teeth look "off color," dingy and unattractive.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack and your teeth open to decay. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old ways won't clear it off
Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film successfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any other known.

Largely on dental advice, the world has turned to this method.

Clears film off
Firms the Gums

It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes that film, then firms the gums.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt.

Send the coupon. Clip it now before you forget.

MILTON LIPSCHULTZ DECIDES TO SERVE ATLANTA PEN TERM

Covington, Ky., February 2.—(AP)—Milton G. Lipschultz, of Philadelphia, convicted with former Congressman John W. Langer, of Kentucky, in the Belle of Anderson whisky conspiracy case, has decided to serve his two-year term at Atlanta penitentiary without seeking a writ of certiorari from the United States court. Marshall Roy B. Williams said he expected Lipschultz to surrender tomorrow for removal to Atlanta.

Congressman Langer being serving his two-year term several weeks ago. These men and several others were charged with conspiracy to remove 1,400 cases of bonded whisky from the Belle of Anderson distillery in Anderson county, Kentucky.

A GLASS OF SALTS CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN

Indigestion delays in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by hyperacidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete indigestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten soaks in the stomach much like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest; we belch up gas; we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink it while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to help neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results.—(adv.)

Woman Surprises Her Friends

"After a spell of Typhoid Fever 7 years ago I began to suffer from indigestion and gas in my stomach and colic attacks. This gradually became so bad that my doctor advised an operation for gall stones. A friend advised me to try MAYER'S 'One Dose Will Convince' which I did with splendid results. My friends were astonished at my rapid improvement. I have no more bloating and can eat anything I wish. It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. WAS FRANTIC WITH PAIN

Simple home treatment gave quick, positive relief

How a lonely woman, snowbound on a remote farm, miles from a doctor, got quick and complete relief from the raging pain of neuralgia is told in this letter from Ontario, Canada.

"The pain in my head was driving me wild," she writes, "when I happened to see a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on the dresser where my husband had left it. I gave it a trial—and in no time the pain was gone. I slept peacefully the rest of the night."

And it is amazing—the quick, genuine comfort that Sloan's gives to every kind of muscular pain.

No need to rub. A little Sloan's patted lightly on—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood begins tingling through the aching place. Before you can believe it, the pain, swelling, stiffness are relieved and you feel yourself again. So clean and easy to use, too. All druggists—35 cents.

ROADS CAN'T BE PAVED UNDER PRESENT PLAN

cent annual increase the successive figures would be:

Year	State	Federal
1927	$3,900,000	$2,000,000
1928	3,816,000	2,000,000
1929	4,032,000	2,000,000
1930	4,264,000	2,000,000
1931	4,450,000	2,000,000
Total	20,192,000	10,000,000

Thus, nearly the total income for five years ahead must be pledged to discharge the applications already on file. This provides for an average new construction program during the five years of less than $8,000,000.

Moreover the money is confined to the contributing counties, and does not lend itself to making any continuous traffic outlets.

Small Counties Are Paralyzed. Martin Abney, of Athens, makes this argument as to the immediate action and effect of using county money from those counties which are able to put it out, while many other counties can do nothing and can never meet such a requirement as that they should pay 25 per cent of the cost of the state roads in their own borders:

Of 90 such counties there are probably 60 to 70 in the state. At present these counties are paying the motor vehicle and gas taxes required. While the amount per county is probably small in these weak counties, the aggregate for 60 or 70 counties, the aggregate is considerable. Probably it exceeds 10 per cent of the whole revenue or more than $700,000 per year (for 1927).

This money which the weak counties are paying, so long as no state road work is being done in their borders, is in fact being used to build the roads of the more fortunate and richer counties.

Hence unless the state takes over the entire financing of the state system, the present plan not only does not do anything to help the small weak counties, but actually takes from them the little pittance which they pay into the state fund each year.

The original law was predicated on the pooling of all the motor vehicle and gas taxes so that the strong counties might help the weak ones through the building of a continuous state system connected with every county seat. That purpose is woefully defeated unless the change of plan is made with the state financing the whole cost of the system, and restoring the borrowing power of the counties already involved by reimbursement as soon as possible.

It is extremely probable in the light of experience that Georgia will never secure a connected system of paved state highways unless the state shall finance the entire cost of the state system.

A slower rate of construction per year is necessary.

The annual growth of income will probably be slower, for the faster the roads are built, the more automobiles are put in operation.

The temporary roads will wear out before they can be reached for paving, thereby further incurring inexcusable delays and expenses, and making the completion of a state system of paved highways impossible.

Summary of Main Proposals.

Following is a summary of the main proposals:

1. To provide for the early completion of the entire present state system by state funds and federal aid, with ultimate reimbursement to counties for sums used in construction cost of said roads.

2. To specify with exactness the meaning of "completion of the entire state system" after which reimbursement to counties shall begin regardless of any addition to the state system which may have been legally made subsequent to the passage of this plan.

3. To provide a complete reorganization of the system to carry out the purposes of the plan.

4. To show that in a period not longer than 10 years, the present state system will be completed by the construction of 3,350 or more miles of heavy traveled roads at a cost of around $30,000 per mile; 3,000 or more miles of less heavily used roads at a cost of say $15,000 per mile.

5. To show further, that thereafter, the state's income from the same sources will be ample not only to retire the outstanding bonds and interest as they fall due, but will permit a return of all money to counties at a fixed rate a year.

6. The enactment of a constitutional amendment and other legislation which will make the plan stable and effective.

Now in all justice to the people of Georgia let's work to a plan—that is to a complete change in the present system, making the state the highway unit, toward getting a paved system at the earliest possible moment, and toward making the road dollar do a greater and more valuable service.

Eight Screen Stars Shown This Week for You To Name SLOGANS MUST FIT EACH PLAYER

Big crowds are thronging Loew's Grand theater for the second week of The Constitution Masked Players' contest now in progress, and the second group of stars will be shown all this week on special films at each performance. All persons who did not enter the contest the first week will have a chance to enter this week, on the same basis as the first week's group, as the first week's group of players also will be shown this week.

The five players appearing in the first group and the three players appearing in the second group will be shown in two sets of films all this week at Loew's Grand, and the coupon appearing in The Constitution daily will have space for eight players instead of five. This puts everybody on an equal basis in the contest, and will enable thousands of additional people to enter the contest if they so desire.

Interest in the contest continues to increase daily at Loew's, and this was attested by the large crowds which attended the theater during the first week of The Constitution's contest. The game is to guess the names of the masked players and provide fitting slogans for them. Total prize of more than $600 will be awarded by The Constitution, the first prize being $125, the largest prize ever offered in Atlanta in a contest of this nature.

Coupons appearing in The Constitution must be filled with the names of the masked players and with slogans for each one. One group of players was presented last week. The second group will be shown this week, the third group next week and the fourth group the following week. The contestant must then fill in the names of all the players appearing in the four groups and must send the four coupons to the Masked Players editor of The Constitution in one container not later than February 22. The fifth week of the contest will be devoted to the judging and the sixth week the masked players will be shown unmasked on the screen at Loew's.

BOND PLAN DETAILS EXPECTED TODAY

The finance committee of city council is expected to decide today on the bond plan it will submit to council's call session Thursday.

Several proposals have been advanced but one by Comptroller B. Graham West, calling for $8,000,000 has attracted most attention as it supports what is termed the immediate needs of departments which require additional financial assistance at once, it is said.

The legality of this plan has been questioned by bond attorneys of the city because it calls for issuance of the $8,000,000 without a raise in tax rates. Mr. West late Tuesday was working on final details of the plan.

A tentative division of the $8,000,000 proposal includes $3,000,000 for school buildings, and $500,000 for equipment; $2,500,000 for sewers; $1,000,000 for viaducts, and $1,000,000 for a new city hall.

Ground Hog Sees Belated Spring; Rain Is Slated

Despite the fact that the ground hog, nature's weather prophet, emerged Tuesday from his subterranean abode and, upon seeing his shadow, hastily sought refuge in obscurity, C. P. von Herrmann, local weather forecaster, disputed the diminutive animal's reliability as a weather prophet.

He flatly declared that the ground hog's actions have no connection with future weather conditions, and he added that "it is beyond the realm of human intelligence to predict an early or late spring."

"Weather cannot be foretold more than two or three days ahead," Mr. von Herrmann said. "All forecasts are based on the fact that air currents move from west to east as a general rule, with only slight deviation, such as a movement in southeastern or northeastern direction. We make our reports according to the velocity of the wind and high and low pressure areas and other data. There is absolutely no guess work about weather forecasts. Neither moon nor stars nor ground hogs have the slightest influence on atmospheric conditions."

Atlanta has had a normal winter, according to Mr. von Herrmann. The average mean temperature for January was 42.6, which is exactly normal. January rainfall, however, was two inches above normal this year.

Statistics show 7.31 inches of rain last month as compared with an average of 5.31 for the same month.

The thermometer Tuesday registered a high mark of 56 and a low of 39 degrees. A slight rise in the mercury is anticipated today and the weather bureau's advice to Atlantans is to prepare for several days of rain.

Improve Tea with Lemon

At all first-class hotels and famous restaurants, as you have noticed, tea is always served with a California lemon.

The lemon tang enhances the flavor of the tea—adds an attractive zest.

California lemon juice makes a cup of tea more beautiful, too, furnishing fresh vitamins and organic salts and acids which are appetizers and digestive aids.

So lemon with tea is both the vogue and a feature of good dietetics.

Ask for California lemons, juicy, tart and practically seedless. Best for slicing. Keep a dozen handy for all kinds of uses.

NEW ASSAULT MADE ON INCOME TAX UNIT.

Washington, February 2.—(AP)—Additional strikes on the income tax unit of the treasury were presented today to the senate in reports signed by the majority members of the investigating committee headed by Senator Coughlin, republican, Michigan.

Concrete cases were presented in an effort to show that more than $100,000,000 in unauthorized deductions for tax reduction purposes had been allowed, which were not based on rulings of the solicitor of the internal revenue bureau.

Similarly, the majority set up the contention that something like $20,000,000 in authorization allowances had been made which were "not based on sound engineering principles and not specifically condemned by the solicitor's ruling."

In the first category was placed among others an allowance of $27,926,412 to the United States Steel corporation, a case which was freely discussed during the hearings and widely covered in testimony already made a part of the public record of the committee's investigation.

Amortizations which engineers for the committee contended were not based on sound engineering principles included $15,589,614 for the Aluminum Company of America, in which Henry Mellon is a stockholder; $7,258,731 for the Bethlehem Steel corporation; $9,912,740 for the National Amine and Chemical company; $2,845,000 for the Atlantic Refining company; $1,892,624 for the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, and $1,675,000 for the Cuban American Sugar company.

PLOT TO MURDER

PANGALOS FOILED

Athens, February 2.—A communist plot to assassinate General Pangalos, the dictator, has been uncovered. Many persons have been arrested by the police and military.

Pangalos proclaimed himself dictator of Greece several weeks ago. He was premier at the time, but "proclaimed" himself dictator "by parliamentary government." The change from parliamentary to dictatorial government was peaceful, Pangalos having complete control of the army and navy.

In his proclamation to the Greek people, Pangalos announced his purpose to raise the Greek army and navy to primary importance in the Greek sphere of the Mediterranean.

TWO MEN INJURED AS CARS COLLIDE; POLICE MAKE CASES

J. E. Tiner, 39, of 425 Whitehall street, and J. M. Purcell, who gave his address as 112 Hurt building, were severely shaken up and bruised about midnight Tuesday as the result of an automobile accident at Gordon street and Lucile avenue.

According to Patrolmen C. F. Wills and M. A. Hornsby, who investigated, Tiner was driving his machine on Gordon street when Purcell turned his car into Gordon street from Lucile avenue. Cases of reckless driving were docketed against the two men. Both cars were badly damaged.

CLOSING SESSIONS OF MEN'S REGIONAL CONFERENCE HELD

Sir Richard Winfrey, for more than 20 years a member of the British parliament and one of the outstanding Christian laymen of Europe, closed the two-day men's regional conference at Wesley Memorial Methodist church Tuesday night with an address on church work and cooperation.

The meeting marked the close of the fifth of sixteen regional conventions being held to sponsor better cooperation among Methodist churches. The sessions were attended throughout by large congregations and were featured by addresses by widely known religious leaders.

At the session Tuesday afternoon three addresses were given. Fred T. Barnett spoke on "The World Brotherhood." Dr. J. E. Crawford gave a talk on "Christian Stewardship" and G. L. Morlock gave an address on "Missionary Service."

FATHER HIRES SPECIAL TO SEE INJURED CHILD

Tuesday night he chartered a special train for Atlanta. Just after the train left Greenville, it was learned that the child was not seriously hurt, and railway officials telegraphed Colonel Woodward to this effect en route. The message of assurance reached the father at Seneca, S. C., greatly alleviating his anxiety.

Train Arrives Here.

After halting at Brookwood station here long enough to allow its only passenger to alight, the special train—consisting of a locomotive and one passenger coach—proceeded to the Terminal station. The crew consisted of Trainmaster W. H. Cheney, of the Charlotte division, in charge of the train; Engineer Stephens, a conductor, and a fireman.

"We did not know what was the cause of the sudden order for a special at Greenville," Trainmaster Cheney told a Constitution reporter on arrival here. "Between Greenville and Seneca we made fast time, but at Seneca Colonel Woodward received a message that his son was only slightly hurt, and from that point on we took things a little more leisurely."

Colonel Woodward appeared to be much relieved upon receipt of the telegram from Greenville to the effect that railway officials there had learned from Atlanta that first reports of the baby's condition were greatly exaggerated.

The train crew reported that the trip was made without untoward incident of any kind.

Fast Run Made.

Attaches of the night chief dispatcher's office here early this morning termed the run of 152 miles in three hours and five minutes a remarkable one.

"An average of 50 miles an hour is fast running," they said.

Colonel J. C. Woodward, grandfather of the injured baby, and head of the Georgia Military Academy at College Park, told The Constitution late Tuesday night that he had been informed of the accident and of his son's hurried trip to Atlanta.

BRITONS CONDEMN LIQUOR SMUGGLING

Officers charged with the responsibility for enforcing the Volstead act will be compared with justice department records and police records throughout the country, and any dry employee having a record of crime will be dismissed from the service immediately.

The unprecedented treasury order was disclosed by Representative Tinkham, Massachusetts, republican, before the house civil service committee in appealing from his bill to place prohibition agents under civil service.

Tinkham read from official records showing that 916 enforcement officers, including 12 directors and one assistant director, were dropped from the federal service "for cause" between January, 1920, and November, 1925.

Officers were dismissed, he declared, for bribery, extortion, falsification of expense accounts, intoxication, warehouse robberies, theft, contempt of court, misuse of fire alarms and failure to file income tax returns.

Treasury department records disclose, Tinkham said, that agents have been convicted of offenses ranging from murder to extortion.

Senator Pepper Gives High Praise To Landis

New York, February 2.—(By The Associated Press.)—Organized baseball owes much of its present-day success to two outstanding factors—the supreme court's decision that it is "safe" and the engagement of Kenesaw Mountain Landis as its chief arbiter.

This was the declaration tonight of United States Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, before the golden jubilee dinner of the National league, marking the close of the fiftieth year.

"Most people do not realize," said Senator Pepper, "that we owe the continued existence of the National league and of organized ball to a historic decision by a great umpire."

There was a moment a few years ago when the question was whether organized baseball was safe or not, he asserted, pointing out that its status faced a test under the country's anti-trust laws.

But the supreme court, he recalled, ruled that organized ball was "safe" a decision that saved the national game.

"Organized ball is not interstate commerce because the output of the players' skill is not a commercial activity. The anti-trust laws have no application. The major leagues, the minor leagues, the world's series, the reserve clause, the player's contract—all these are the component parts of a system which has stood the fire test of legality and has been triumphantly vindicated."

Characterizing the game as a "Commonwealth within itself," Senator Pepper declared: "It was baseball day when the clubowners subjected themselves to the jurisdiction of an umpire off the field on precisely the same principle that the players are expected to accept the decisions of the umpire during the game. It was a great day for wholesome sport when we secured as commissioner, that keen sportsman, that upright judge, that courageous and compelling spirit, Kenesaw Mountain Landis."

Senator Pepper pictured the importance of the major leagues and organized ball as a whole by contrasting what life would be without them—with "nothing to read about except miscellaneous news, foreign affairs and concerns of the government."

Messages of greeting from President Coolidge, Premier MacKenzie King of Canada, and Chauncey Depew were read tonight at the dinner by John A. Heydler, president of the senior baseball circuit.

"Your league is one of the leading exponents of our national game," President Coolidge said. "Anything which tends to interest the youth of the country in participation in a wholesome athletic sport is to be encouraged. Please extend to those present my greetings and best wishes."

Regretting his inability to attend because of official duties, Premier King expressed his appreciation for the invitation extended him and his wish for the success of the function.

"No one dreamed 50 years ago that baseball would conquer the world," said Mr. Depew's message. "It's success is the triumph of healthy and inspiring sport. It has added to national and international good-will and prompted good fellowship. May its golden jubilee be followed by a glorious century."

Regretting his inability to attend because of official duties, Premier King expressed his appreciation for the invitation extended him and his wish for the success of the function.

"No one dreamed 50 years ago that baseball would conquer the world," said Mr. Depew's message. "It's success is the triumph of healthy and inspiring sport. It has added to national and international good-will and prompted good fellowship. May its golden jubilee be followed by a glorious century."

Senator Pepper pictured the importance of the major leagues and organized ball as a whole by contrasting what life would be without them—with "nothing to read about except miscellaneous news, foreign affairs and concerns of the government."

Messages of greeting from President Coolidge, Premier MacKenzie King of Canada, and Chauncey Depew were read tonight at the dinner by John A. Heydler, president of the senior baseball circuit.

"Your league is one of the leading exponents of our national game," President Coolidge said. "Anything which tends to interest the youth of the country in participation in a wholesome athletic sport is to be encouraged. Please extend to those present my greetings and best wishes."

Dixie Highway North of Atlanta Open to Traffic

Cartersville, Ga., February 2.—(Special).—Although the Dixie highway, between Cartersville and Marietta, has been in bad shape and motorists have at times found it practically impossible to navigate along the road near the town of Acworth, this condition was remedied some three or four weeks ago by the state highway department. As a result of this effort the road has been repaired in such a way that there can be no further trouble this winter.

This latter fact, however, has not been generally known and as a result visitors desiring to use this road are being told that it is still impassable.

Illustrating how this misinformation is being given out, two parties of tourists, en route from Florida to their homes in Cleveland, Ohio, stopping in Atlanta last Saturday, were told that they could hardly get through the road near Acworth. They were advised to buy chains for their tires, for an almost impassable trip.

Upon reaching Cartersville, they reported that they found the road in excellent shape for getting over it, and were able to average 35 to 40 miles an hour from the time they left Atlanta until they reached this city. They said, further, that they felt this section of Georgia was getting criticism that it did not deserve, and that steps should be taken to correct some of the misstatements being given out in points south of Cartersville. Quite a number of people now in Florida from the north, are being advised to sell their cars and get through the Dixie highway north of Atlanta, to Chattanooga.

President Ben C. Gilreath, of the Cartersville Chamber of Commerce, says he has recently been over the entire route in question, and finds that cars can make it through without the least bit of trouble. He feels that this sort of information should be made public and given the widest circulation.

Man Held For Death
Of Two Women Faces
Jury Today at Marietta

Marietta, Ga., February 2.—(Special).—W. M. Moreland, of Cincinnati, who was indicted at the December term of the Cobb county superior court on a charge of murder in connection with the death of two women, alleged to have died from injuries received in an accident on the Dixie highway near Marietta on November 12, in which the car in which Moreland was riding figured, is expected to be placed on trial here Wednesday.

Mrs. B. A. Hope and Mrs. B. A. Van Hous, both of Fulton, N. Y., were the victims of the accident and for whose deaths Moreland was indicted.

Moreland, it is said, was indicted in a collision between two cars, one occupied by Moreland and a companion, said to have been W. H. Bray, also of Cincinnati, and the other by Mrs. Hope and Mrs. Van Hous, who were traveling to Van Hous winter home at Punta Gorda, Fla. The trial was expected to be held at an Atlanta hospital and Mrs. Hope died four days later and Mrs. Van Hous five days after the accident.

Moreland was arrested and placed in the Cobb county jail. Bray, it appears, has not been apprehended.

It is said that Bray is expected to prove that he was driving the car at the time of the accident, while Mr. Van Hous, husband of the dead woman, who has been indicted, is claiming that the car struck his automobile.

Peach Rate Hearing

Walter R. McDonald, vice chairman of the Georgia public service commission, will represent that body at the hearing in Macon today before Examiner Fuller, of the interstate commerce commission, on peach freight rates. It was announced at the office of the commission Tuesday.

The hearing is the outgrowth of protests against present rates and conditions of shipment on the part of peach shippers in several southern states. A number of railroads, however, are anxious to continue the existing carload rates from Macon, Columbus, Savannah, Atlanta and other points in Georgia to virtually every northern and eastern state, without observing the long-and-short-haul provision of section 4 of the interstate commerce act.

With Commissioner McDonald at the head of the meeting will be J. P. Price, rate expert of the Georgia commission.

Among questions expected to arise before the hearing will be the effect of refrigeration in summer, and car-hauling in winter, as well as other vital matters concerning shipment of peaches to the northern and eastern producing territories.

TWO SLOT MACHINE
DEFENDANTS FINED

George Papas and Alex Antonio, Atlanta storekeepers, charged with maintaining a lottery and carrying on a scheme for hoarding the Dixie pool connection with operating nickel-in-the-slot machines, entered pleas of guilty Tuesday before Judge John D. Humphries in Fulton superior court and were each fined $50.

The storekeepers were among the first to plead guilty to charges drawn by the Fulton county grand jury in connection with the slot machine war. There were approximately 300 Atlanta storekeepers who tried to be tried.

George Papas was jointly indicted with J. W. Atkinson and J. F. Everett, but, according to testimony of Papas in his plea, Atkinson and Everett had nothing to do with the operation of the machine in question. The charges against Atkinson and Everett in this indictment were not pressed by Judge Humphries at the request of Solicitor John A. Boykin.

Due to the illness of Paul Carpenter, attorney employed by a number of the defendants, the trial of the Atlanta Mint vending company, the cases of the officials slated for trial Tuesday were postponed until today.

Judge Humphries forfeited the $2,000 bond of R. M. Mussey, alleged slot machine owner, who failed to appear for trial Tuesday and ordered that he be re-arrested and placed under $4,000 bond.

McDONALD TO ATTEND PEACH RATE HEARING

Walter R. McDonald, vice chairman of the Georgia public service commission, will represent that body at the hearing in Macon today before Examiner Fuller, of the interstate commerce commission, on peach freight rates. It was announced at the office of the commission Tuesday.

THE DAY IN FINANCE

By R. L. BARNUM

New York, February 2.—An advance of 25 cents a barrel in Ohio crude oil and advances in gasoline and other refined oil prices in the southeast feed into the high price of day's price advance in mid-continent crude, together with a renewal of 5 per cent for call money, was up to 10 per cent today.

The renewal rate for call money was the highest since the first week of January, or when heavy demands were being made for the money market for year-end requirements. As time money continues easy and plentiful, the consensus of opinion here is that the existing high rate for call money is only temporary, to be followed shortly by lower rates.

Before the close today call money dropped to 4 per cent. The price of money was the highest since the first week of January, or when heavy demands were being made for the money market for year-end requirements. As time money continues easy and plentiful, the consensus of opinion here is that the existing high rate for call money is only temporary, to be followed shortly by lower rates.

Prominent oil men here expressed the belief yesterday when the advance in mid-continent crude oil was announced that a mistake was being made in advancing crude oil prices, because such action was likely to stimulate production of crude oil just when the industry after having suffered for the past two years from overproduction was beginning to feel the benefits of curtailed production.

Bankers here received private advices today from the mid-continent states to the effect that extreme excitement had developed overnight as a result of yesterday's advance in crude oil prices. The advance was expected to be followed by a bidding for oil land leases and the number of leases actually closed for drilling purposes doubled.

Steel prices advanced today since 1914, with the price before noon $4.86 9/16. Bar is $4.86 5/8.

Automobile Boom Forecast.

Wall street here today predicted the middle of this month the largest manufacturers of passenger automobiles will be operating practically at capacity. The prediction is based on the fact that the automobile industry is the most prosperous for that period in the history of the industry. Most manufacturers started in 1925 with the smallest stock of unsold cars on hand in recent years.

General Motors is being advanced in expectation of an extra dividend to be paid to shareholders on the basis of the regular quarterly dividend. In conservative banking circles here the opinion prevails that only the regular quarterly dividend will be declared. The stock market is expected to be a mistake to start paying extra dividends at the beginning of the year. It is being pointed out that the extra dividend was paid in September 11 to declare the first extra dividend for the year, amounting to $1, and until November 12 to declare the extra dividend.

Copper sold at 14¢ today with 14 1/8 asked for April delivery. Copper men are predicting 10 cents for the month before the end of the year. Something more than the advance in the price of copper metal, however, is going on in Granby. This stock is being bought by the mining companies for several days a new high for the year was made. Granby has $2,500,000 convertible 7 per cent bonds maturing May 1, 1930. The stock is now convertible into stock at $25 a share.

According to gossip the management has plans for making the stock attractive to the holders of the bonds. The bonds to exercise the conversion privilege. The stock has paid no dividend since 1919 when a 3 1/4 per cent was distributed. For the first three months of 1925, $1.67 a share was earned. Atlanta Gateway to the PROSPEROUS SOUTHEAST

WHY have 960 national corporations selected Atlanta as their southeastern manufacturing and distributing point? Such a preponderance of reasons may be found in the presence of these representative industries of the country as to set at rest any question about Atlanta being the Gateway City of the South. These corporations would not be here by any combination of circumstances but for the basic fact that in Atlanta they found the strategic center for serving the South. They found here the transportation facilities, the geographic center, native resources, climatic conditions, labor conditions, and other superior advantages which are essential to the prosperity of modern business.

Why have 1,009 manufacturing plants selected Atlanta as the home base of their operations? Is the answer not found in the fact that these manufacturing concerns could have at their command the exceptional advantages of the 14 railroads which offer freight, express and passenger service at every hour of the day and night to every section of the nation? That ample credit was available in the rapidly-growing banks of Atlanta whose clearings have shown an increase of 500% in the last decade? That these plants are here located in the center of a population of 12,000,000 people, guaranteeing a ready market?

Why did the United States Government establish one of its regional banks here? Why have all the large railroads made Atlanta their southeastern headquarters? Why did the telephone and telegraph companies select Atlanta for their headquarters? Why did the express companies place their southeastern headquarters in Atlanta? Why did automobile companies settle on Atlanta for their southeastern headquarters? Why? For the simple reason that these major agencies of modern business had to be at the base of the South's industrial and commercial activities. The far-seeing leadership of these great agencies recognized the undoubted trend of business toward Atlanta and here they positioned themselves in order that they might adequately meet the needs of the South.

Thus it is that the business leaders of the nation have come to agreement that Atlanta has fulfilled the prophecy of John C. Calhoun when, in 1848, he predicted that at this very point would be built a city which would form the center of contact for the entire South. The railroads, the climate, the natural resources, the abundance of high-class labor, all these are the basic facts which have entered into the romantic growth of these seventy-five years since the great statesman made the prophecy which has so wonderfully been fulfilled. Atlanta is grateful for the good fortune which has made possible this marvelous growth and in the enthusiasm of this glorious achievement and with full consciousness of the future, the Gateway City of the South faces the second quarter of the Twentieth Century with reassuring confidence not only in its own constant expansion but in the steady development of Georgia and the entire South.

Atlanta grew in 1925 as the city has grown in no previous year. Bank clearings exceeded all previous records. Postoffice receipts went far beyond any former year. Railway tonnage out of Atlanta for 1925 showed the greatest gain of any year. Building permits showed a tremendous expansion program both in business and residential properties.

Macy came to Atlanta, affiliating with one of the large department stores of the city, thus establishing the premiership of Atlanta among the large retail stores of the South. Sears-Roebuck & Co. came to Atlanta two months ago, thus assuring the city of the mail order supremacy of the South. It is now likely that two other major concerns will announce southern headquarters in Atlanta within sixty days.

Atlanta is the logical center for heavy chemical industries. Local resources make Atlanta the ultimate center of ceramic development for the South. The canned goods industries are centering more and more in Atlanta because of the ready access to the abundant fruit and vegetable supply of the contiguous territory. Road machinery manufacturers are coming here to establish the base of supply for the great era of road building throughout the South.

Auto manufacturers are putting in increased plants to care for the heavy demands of the growing South. Cement factories are coming to Atlanta to be near the demand of the great building era in the South and also because of the abundance of local raw products. Candy manufacturers are heading up in Atlanta, where they find ample labor and easy contact with the sources of supply.

1926 promises to break all previous records in the industrial development of the South, and Atlanta stands as the Gateway City for this inevitable era of expansion. It will be the pleasure of Atlanta's business men to answer inquiries from those interests throughout the nation who are now contemplating a southern manufacturing and distributing center.

FOOTBALL REGALIA SWAPPED FOR NURSE'S UNIFORM

Symphony Orchestra Deemed Worthy Of Highest Praise

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.

I wonder how many of us, really and truly, took no cognizance yesterday—ground-hog day—of weather conditions in their relation to future bearings on the approach of spring?

Blind superstitionists all! No? You resent this! In charms, spells and omens you believe not! Black Friday nor the numeral 13 holds no fear for you. The light or the dark of the moon has nothing to do with potato planting, nor is it an essential to eat cowpeas on the first day of the new year.

A black cat crossing your pathway or the raising of an umbrella in the house have no dread for you. The magic of the charm-bag means nothing in your mental cosmography and no bias have you toward supernatural agencies!

"If—this is true—you are a man, my son!" You, with Milton, must agree when he says, "The Truth—superstitions and traditions taint!" So be it! You are right!

However, ground-hog day never passes unobserved, I notice! February days in their usual darkness and gloom are sufficient reason within themselves to provoke almost any untoward mental attitude. Watching eagerly for the least straw of hope at which to catch is nothing more than to be expected.

So regardless of all inspirational meanderings of his lordship—the ground-hog—through the sunshine and shadow of February 2nd, let's accept the beautiful, warm sunshine and the precious twitterings of the little birds yesterday as a good omen and worry not over the prognostications which they are accredited with in their portions toward the precocity of the spring time.

Symphony Orchestra.

The Atlanta Symphony orchestra is nearing the completion of its present season's program.

How much this splendid organization has meant to cultural Atlanta has been attested each concert by the capacity houses. And these audiences have been of Atlanta's most representative citizens.

And so they should have been! Music—the type of music given by the Symphony orchestra—is an expression of one of the leading arts of civilization, one of its strongest motives forces, and a high order of intellect and aesthetic cultivation are requisite for its appreciation.

Symphony—harmony of sounds—the allegro, the adagio, the scherzo motifs, fugues, preludes, sonatas—all go to make up these symphonic poems.

The harmony of a symphony orchestra is like unto a wondrous shell thrown on "the shore of time by the ocean of humanity."

We hold it to the ear and hear distinctly the music of the seraphim, with a definite melody of the epoch's spirit and the deep undertone of the utterances of the race.

Beethoven's symphonies have been ranked with Shakespeare's "Hamlet," Leonardo's "Last Supper," the Ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, a Titian or a Corot, in their functionings on the human soul.

But does anything or any other art compare with the beauty of the stringed orchestra—with the moving sonority of the cello, the clear, stimulating call of the violin or the liquid, lilting melodies of the flute—in its appeal?

The Symphony orchestra is as one great billowy ocean of sound sweeping the human emotions! Some one has said, "Music can waken in us the emotions we feel when we think the transcendent, the supernatural, the divine!" To Mrs. George Walker, the untiring, capable secretary of the Atlanta Symphony orchestra, is all of Atlanta indebted for her wonderful work in the past winter's achievement, and in the standardization of this expression of art which she has so raised.

Motherly (?) Tenderness!

This is not the first time this column has taken the opportunity of calling attention to the fact that these young football heroes of ours are capable of real human emotions!

Of course I'm not calling names! And, of course, none of you saw happen what I saw happen!

But, really, was there ever anything more perfectly fascinating than the tenderness with which one of these big, mighty Golden Tornado boys took care of his little, sick date while in Athens over the week-end just passed?

The terrible weather—at least we will lay it to the weather—had given this charming child a frightfully crummy cough. The doctor, with the hourly-to-be-administered prescription, came immediately on the heels of her arrival in Athens.

Something else came which was entirely unlooked for—an injury to her ankle by a wild flying-heel Charleston!

Another visit from the doctor with tight bandages and rigid instructions to stay off of her feet!

Of course the offices of a nurse were entirely necessary!

And out of the hundreds of ready candidates, who was there who should have precedence over her really, truly date?

Remembering his prowess on the football field, who would dare come up against this young giant's rights covering said estate?

Self-appointed he may have been but certainly he was no slacker at the job!

That hourly prescription was administered according to the doctor's orders, whether in the hotel lobby or on the bathroom floor! On the stroke of the clock, up walked our hero with tumbler in one hand and spoon and bottle in the other and without any holding of noses, the cough-drops were given!

Of course, hereby—such tender care would have brought back the dead surely—a spell of pneumonia was averted!

What less could be expected from such an interested nurse and such an interesting and we wouldn't say not interested patient!

An interesting situation certainly it was and that with a very much interested audience!

These versatile football players who can swap the mask and padded suit for a nurse's uniform are ready to capitulate!

Big Crowds Brave Rain, Cold Weather To Hear Evangelist

Two altar services marked the revival meeting of Uldine Mabelle Utley, girl evangelist, Tuesday night at the Gospel Tabernacle on Capitol avenue.

After a score had answered the altar call at the close of the service, the youthful evangelist descended from the pulpit and walking back in the rear of the audience, extended a second altar call, and more than a score responded to the second invitation.

The young evangelist preached from the incident of Paul before Felix, and said, "There are those who can face multitudes and preach, but I tell you it takes a person with a vision of the Spirit to stand before one person and preach the gospel."

"This is the most convenient season you'll ever have to give your life to God," she added.

Referring to Paul's stand before his accusers, she declared that "righteousness is just as much a religious feeling in your work and your leisure, as when you lift the sacrament cup to your lips on Sunday."

Despite the rain at an early hour, the house was crowded, with all standing room occupied. The young evangelist will speak this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

TRENTINO RECEIVES A SHOCK.

The habitués of Monte Carlo, and especially of the Hotel de Paris restaurant, had become almost blasé with the sight of beautiful women, yet there was scarcely a person in the room whose attention was not attracted as Nina di Benti, followed by Hargrave, made her way to the corner table which she had chosen. A woman who makes a great effort rarely succeeds in looking her best. Nina di Benti that night was an exception. She had made the effort of her life, and succeeded. Her gown was of a soft shade of gold, daringly close fitting, disclosing the strength and grace of her supple figure with complete and audacious success. She carried herself, too, with just the right amount of nervous triumph. She was punishing the man who had flouted her. She was to spend the evening alone with the one man upon whom she had fixed her heart. Her complexion had never seemed so perfect, her eyes so clear and soft, the

"I am at your disposition," he assented. curve of her lips more attractive. Even Hargrave, as he stood for a moment or two while eager maitres d'hotel arranged her chair to her satisfaction, felt an impulse of whole-hearted admiration.

"I have been a blind man, marchesa," he said, as he handed her the menu, "for is it that this evening you are inspired?"

"Inspired to success, I trust," she murmured. "If your object is to punish Trentino," he remarked, "I should say you are succeeding admirably."

Trentino, indeed, only three tables away, was sitting as though he had been turned to stone. Not only the color—he was always pale—but the life itself seemed to have been drawn from his face. He sat between Marston and Daniel Wegges, and he glared across at the two newcomers with a clamor of venomous hatred in his prominent black eyes. Nina leaned back in her chair, and smiled.

"Poor Andrea!" she murmured. "I believe, indeed, that I succeed. He is certainly very angry."

"I should say there was no doubt about that," Hargrave assented. "He has the air of one quite capable of a rash act."

"At least," she said, "I trust that he will allow us to finish this perfect dinner. You are an artist at a menu, I find, Sir Hargrave, as in other ways."

"One must spend an hour eating," he answered carelessly. "One may as well try to find the best."

The conversation, although quite natural, even easy, was a little disjointed. Both, although neither showed any signs of it, were affected in different ways by Trentino's unceasing observation. His expression, after that first wicked curl of the lips, was passive enough, but his manner remained all the time menacing.

"Do you know the Comtesse Fayalidi?" Nina asked, a little abruptly. "I have met her twice, three times perhaps," Hargrave admitted.

"She says strange things about you," Nina confided, "and really, when one comes to consider it, I think she must be a witch."

"Consider what?"

"You know what they say about you—that you never lose when you gamble, that with every opportunity for success you have no feeling for women, that you live with the air of one who scorns life or who has finished with it. Why are you so inhuman?"

"Well, to begin with, I won't admit I am," he replied. "If I were an inhuman person, I should not be dining with the most attractive woman in the room."

"I like to hear you say that," she murmured, raising her eyes. "It is an obvious truth," he answered. "I do not think that really I am different from other men. Perhaps this year I am a little tired of things. The more pleasures there are at one's command, the more quickly one learns perhaps the folly of helping one's self too rapaciously."

"You talk like a philosopher," she complained, "and I would so much rather you talked like a human—a very human man."

"I am afraid I must sound a little prosy," he admitted, watching the wine flow into his glass.

"You haven't any secret illness or anything of that sort, have you?" she asked abruptly.

"I was never conscious of feeling better in my life," he answered. "Why do you ask me such a question?"

"Madam Fayalidi again," she confessed. "She did not exactly go so far as to say you were ill or anything of that sort, but—"

"But what?" Hargrave persisted.

"She said you had 'e' writing,'" Nina concluded reluctantly. "What she means, I do not know. They tell me she comes of a family of Gypsies. They have some gifts and many fancies."

"More fancies than gifts, I should imagine," Hargrave observed carelessly. "I am a very ordinary person, really. This year I admit I am in luck. Last year I lost all the time. It goes in cycles."

"Shall we play tonight—just for an hour?" she suggested.

"I am at your disposition," he assented.

"It would amuse me," she admitted. "I watched you at the chemin de fer table the other night. Andrea has the gifts of a gambler, but he has not your courage. Tell me, what will become of him after—Thursday week, isn't it?"

"He will be broken," Hargrave replied coldly. "He will climb up again some day, I expect, because he is already probably getting rid of large sums of money, but he will not be able to do business again on the stock exchange. He may not have to undergo the same poverty, but he will incur the same disgrace as he brought upon my friend."

"A man who is a good hater," she reflected, "is generally a good lover. Would that apply to you, I wonder?"

"One is the poorest judge of one's own accomplishments in that direction," Hargrave observed.

"But you are the only judge of your sensations," she reminded him. "You are the sort of person who lets no one know what he feels."

"On the contrary," he replied, "I shall take you at once into my confidence as to my present thoughts. I admire your gown immensely; I have never seen you looking better. I offer you my most respectful homage," he concluded, raising his glass.

"Homage? Respectful homage, too? I would have more than that," she told him.

He diverted her attention to a group of newcomers—a large dinner party given by some new arrivals from England. Pellingham, who was in the rear of the procession, detached himself and came over for a moment. He bowed to the marchesa and, with a word of apology, leaned down to Hargrave.

"Seen Miss Violet since last night?" he inquired. Hargrave nodded sympathetically.

"You know, then?"

"She told me."

"Forced the running a bit, I expect. She isn't like these other girls. I'm going to try my luck again, anyhow."

Coming to the Atlanta.

"Artists and Models," which is probably the most widely discussed review in the world, will be revealed to Atlanta by the Messrs. Schubert for one week, beginning next Monday night, February 8, at the Atlanta theater. There are many comedy skits in "Artists and Models" that meet the critical demands, for instance, "The Ice Man," "His Father's Child," and "Two in One," which is not a shoe polish. In "Artists and Models" the Hoffman girls alone, there is no hesitation in affirming that the revue "begins where all others leave off." Fatness will be given Wednesday and Saturday. Mail orders now. The box office sale starts tomorrow.

Loew's Grand.

Loew's Grand theater is offering a strong bill of vaudeville this week with Lora Brava and her big company of Spanish dancers as the headline attraction. Miss Brava appears in several original dance numbers. She is supported by an all-star company. Lora and Kathleen Dexter present a comedy skit, in which they introduce funny songs and novel imitations. Lora Brown and Marie Rogers appear in a lively comedy skit. The Lora Clark give dancing feats on the flying trapeze, while Phil Davis, black-faced comedian, brings a lot of new songs and stories. "The Lucky Horseshoe," with Tom Mix, is Loew's picture.

The Metropolitan.

Neglected love is the theme of Griffith's latest First National release, "Infatuation," now showing at the Metropolitan theater.

The picture is based on W. Somerset Maugham's "Casar's Wife," which achieved notable success on the stage.

The feature on the stage this week is "The Great Train Robbery."

BOBBY BUSBY, CRISP, QUILTS ASSEMBLY

A. S. Busby, one of the best known members of the Georgia legislature, has resigned his seat in that body. It was announced Tuesday at the office of Governor Clifford Walker. The governor has ordered an election in Crisp county to choose a successor to Mr. Busby. The date for the election will be set by the county ordinary.

Mr. Busby has moved to West Palm Beach, Fla., to live and is ineligible to serve in the legislature now that his residence is no longer in this state. He has formed a law partnership in his new home, it is understood, with a former prominent Crisp attorney, under the firm name of Busby and Bacon.

Representative Busby was one of the most active members of the legislature and was the author of numerous bills dealing with tax reform and amendments to other measures. He made a special study of taxation problems and during his several terms in the general assembly was regarded as a floor leader on all matters pertaining to state revenue.

The final epic of the American Indian reached the screen at the Howard theater yesterday in Paramount's picturization of the Zane Grey story, "The Vanishing American," which features Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Noah Berry. Here is a picture of another episode of the "Zane Grey" series of eternal romance.

This is a subject near to the heart of all us—the passing of the red man. There is no part of American history that is more romantic, more interesting, more epochal in quality than the story of the first Americans—the Indians.

The story treats of the subject of the red man in his last stand against civilization in the same manner that the crossing of the western plains was handled by James Cruze in the "Covered Wagon." It is the most important production that has ever been attempted for the screen, and dramatized in the same manner that characterizes all Zane Grey's works.

Maximilian Pilzer, guest conductor at the Howard, offers a very appropriate musical score for the picture. "Fantasy." This feature number has met with instant approval. Many other surprise novelties are presented, and as a whole the program is one of the very best that the Howard has presented in many months.

Rialto Theater

Thelma "Kid" Lewis, welterweight champion of England and former holder of the world's ring title, is his bow as a thespian in "Sporting Life," the Universal-Jewel Maurice Tourneur production which is at the Rialto theater.

Another episode of the "Zane Grey" series, "The Adventures of Mazie," will be shown. Pathe News will be shown.

Tudor Theater.

The flash of mystery; the crackle of vivid humor; the potent big action and big situations all blend together in the development of "Silk Stocking Sam," the much discussed crook drama, in which Evelyn "Red" Kelly is appearing on the screen of the Tudor theater.

For the first time in her career, Evelyn Brent, brilliant and beautiful young star of the cinema, essay the role of an underworld character and comes off with flying colors. The part of "Storm" Martin, a girl of the slums who associated with crooks only to find that she was a lawbreaker in a fine, upstanding young woman, fits the capabilities of the star as snugly as a new glove.

West End Theater.

Charles Belcher, in addition to playing the "heavy" in Director Stelly's production of "Fools in the Dark," at the West End theater, plays the real estate market. Recently he became involved in legal lawsuits over some property. An account of the action was printed in one of the Los Angeles daily papers and the next morning a friend of Mr. Belcher stopped him on the street and remarked waggishly: "Say, Charlie, I saw your 'ad' in the paper this morning."

Alamo No. 2.

The screen version of Joseph Conrad's famous novel, "Lord Jim," which Victor Fleming directed, is Paramount, is said to be replete with spectacular scenes.

A crash between a piquet boat and a tug boat, the sinking of a battleship at sea with 800 passengers on board, the battle between hundreds of copper-colored savages and a handful of white men, these are some of the thrillingly recorded by the camera.

The chief emphasis of the picture, however, is laid upon the striking story while the battle of a hero man against a thousand odds to prove he is not a coward.

Percy Marmont plays the part of "Lord Jim," Shirley Mason, one of the most talented and beautiful actresses on the screen, plays the part of a half-caste daughter of the South Seas. Mary Hargrave, a girl of great promise, is a brutal sea captain in the picture, "Lord Jim," will be shown at the Alamo No. 2, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

For Monday and Tuesday, "A Kiss for Cinderella," from J. M. Barrie's notable stage play filmed under the direction of Herbert Brenon, will be shown. Brenon in the role made famous by Maude Adams will be shown.

Alpha Theater.

Opened again under new management, the Alpha has a program of a week of real live entertainment. Today "The Wet" features no less a person than Jack Richardson, one of the oldest actors in motion picture business. Thursday, Win Fairbanks will be seen in "Fighting Youth." Win is a fighter that all movie lovers love to see fight.

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE TO GIRL OPERATOR COSTS MAN $26

Charged with using abusive language to a telephone operator, G. Tom Bailey, 32, of 81 Decatur street, Tuesday afternoon drew a fine of $26 before Recorder Murphy M. Hollaway. Bailey was arrested Monday by Detectives J. Hiram Davis and W. J. Stephens, on whom complaint was made by the operator. Bailey, detected and charged with the offense, was charged with the offense of using abusive language to a telephone operator.

The fact that telephone operators are young women who make their own livelihood does not give any one license to be abusive or disrespectful to them. Judge Holloway pointed out in assessing the fine. On the contrary, it shows the public how to treat them with double respect, and so long as I am in charge of this court I will insist that this be done.

BARBARA LA MARR PENNED VERSES ON DEATH BED

Hollywood, Cal., February 2.—Barbara La Marr, philosophy of life and love are revealed in two poems the screen siren wrote during her last illness recently at Pasadena.

The Hollywood film colony, which had never known Barbara as a poet, was making arrangements today to pay her a tribute as an actress, when it was learned that in the seclusion of her Pasadena bungalow she had penned two poems, which her friends say have in them much of her true self.

"Women were created for the fulfillment, the uselessness of longing," she wrote in a poem called "The Other," entitled "The Savage," deals principally with love.
